Plowman Falls Under Plow And Is Killed

While handling the levers of a big 5-disc gang plow, which was being drawn by a tractor, Kisaburo Yoshida, a Japanese laborer, aged 35, fell beneath the implement and was so badly injured that he died about two hours later. The man is survived by a wife and two small children, who live at Haiku.

The accident occurred about 12:30 o'clock last Friday afternoon on the lands of the Haiku Ranch company, just east of Maliko gulch. Just what caused the man to fall is unknown, as none of the other workmen happened to be looking toward him at the time. As he fell, a wheel of the heavy plow passed directly across his face, crushing the skull. He was rushed to the Paia hospital, but died a short time after reaching the institution.

At the coroner's inquest held on Saturday, a verdict of accidental death was returned.

Salvation Army Girls' Band To Visit Maui

A novel entertainment, of which a girls' brass band of 20 pieces will be a prominent feature, will be given in the various theatres of central and west Maui next week. The fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the Wailuku Union Church will occur on October 10. The fact of the anniversary of the granting of the charter to the trustees: Christopher H. Lewis, Sherman Peck and Henry Cornwall, on October 10th, 1866 was brought to the attention of the present board of trustees, and H. B. Penhallow, the chairman called a meeting last Sunday evening after church service. In connection with this meeting, Rev. R. B. Dodge called a meeting of the standing committee of the church, and the joint meeting discussed at some length the matter of a proper celebration. A committee consisting of the minister; W. A. McKay, clerk; and L. R. Matthews, deacon, was appointed to confer and draw up plans for the celebration. The celebration will possibly cover one or two days near the tenth of October. The Sunday that falls on the 8th will probably be the day that will be largely used for the celebration, and a program of unusual interest will undoubtedly be arranged.

The Wailuku Union Church has a very interesting history, which will undoubtedly be brought out in October.

Haiku Experiment In Storing Eggs Success

During the spring of this year when eggs were plentiful two experiments were undertaken in storing eggs. One consisted in putting the eggs in cold storage at Wailuku, the other in putting eggs in "water glass" at home.

The experiment at home was conducted by Mrs. W. L. Wells, at Haiku. Twenty-five cents worth of the crystals of sodium silicate was bought and dissolved by boiling in water. It was hard to dissolve, and some did not dissolve at all. Mrs. Wells says she will not try to dissolve it again, but will buy the liquid next time. Nevertheless it is well to remember that it can be gotten in the crystal form, and in that form is easily mailed from a drug store, in case the liquid cannot be bought nearby, which is likely to be the case here in the islands. After the boiling the liquid was put in a stone crock and when cold three dozen eggs were put in. After some months they were perfectly good. We know of another case on Maui where the eggs were good after a year.

The cold storage experiment was not successful at all. After a few months a large proportion of the eggs were bad. Cold storage is used everywhere for keeping eggs in large quantities, and we do not know just why it was such a failure in this case. For home use the water glass will prove entirely satisfactory. It is both cheap and easy. Farmers Bulletin 287, "Poultry Management" describes the method as follows:

"Eggs to be stored should be: First, from hens that have no males with them, because an infertile egg keeps longer, even without the use of a preservative, than a fertile egg; second, perfectly fresh, for not only will they keep much better, but if an egg that has begun to decay is placed in the same vessel with fresh ones it is likely to affect all the surrounding eggs; and, third, perfectly clean, for fifth of any kind adhering to the shell will taint the preserving medium and thus taint the other eggs."

"In placing eggs in the preservative be careful not to crack the shells. Keep them in a moderately cool room where the temperature may be kept fairly constant. A dry, clean cellar is a suitable place."

"Water-glass.—Of the many methods which have been tried for preserving eggs on a small scale none has proved more successful than the use of water-glass (sodium silicate). This is a very cheap product that can usually be procured at not to exceed 50 cents a gallon, and one gallon will make enough solution to preserve 50 dozen eggs, so that the cost of material would not exceed one cent a dozen. Pure water that has been boiled and then cooled should be used. To each fifteen to twenty quarts of water one quart of water-glass should be added. The solution should be prepared, placed in the jar or other suitable vessel, and the fresh eggs added from time to time until the jar is filled, but be sure that there is two inches of the solution covering the eggs. The eggs should not be washed before packing, for washing injures the keeping quality."—Put out by the Extension Division of the Hawaii Experiment Station.
